

A Sense of Mission

Gabriel

I would like to speak again on the subject of a sense of mission. These are words directed especially to those who have yet to make up their minds to become a follower of the True Law.

Let us suppose that some great natural disaster occurred, and many of your friends and acquaintances were killed, and you were even unsure of what was to become of you. What would you think, and how would you behave then? Would you abandon yourself to desperation and blame Heaven for not helping you when you had some kind of faith in the True Law and the Celestial Realm? Would you give yourself in to crying and lamenting? If this were the case, it cannot be helped if Heaven were to tell you that you were absolutely without a sense of mission.

You should confirm for yourself once again why the followers of the True Law are working so hard to disseminate the True Law, and where their sense of mission comes from. They are devoting themselves in service to build a better tomorrow for the happiness of everyone. Their hearts were touched by the truth and they had faith in the Celestial Realm and decided that they wanted as many people as possible to learn about the True Law so others could also find happiness. For this reason, when an emergency situation arises, followers of the True Law should shine forth like light in the dark. Their sense of mission will give them all the courage they need.

No matter what the circumstances, as long as some of the human race is still surviving, one's sense of mission continues to burn. The job of the followers of the True Law is to keep the lamp of the True Law burning by continuing to spread the True Law until the construction of a utopia has been completed.

Regardless of what tragedy or age of darkness may come, they will not succumb, and as long as Heaven and earth remain connected, their sense of mission will continue to be carried on by others to keep the lamp burning.

A sense of mission is nothing other than to awaken to love for fellow human beings. When you strongly desire to somehow help and protect a person, you can act in ways which transcend death. To transcend death just means to completely discard worldly attachments. I do not say that you must all do this right away. Nevertheless, given these difficult and turbulent time, such a sense of mission is becoming a dire necessity.

(Oct. 11, 1981, Dictated to Noriko Tsuchida through her clairaudience.)