

Leftists, the Mass Media and Religions that Have Become Distant from God

Uriel

We learned that Solzhenitsin gave a speech in the United States this spring titled "Return to God." This communist who once completely denied the existence of God, upon seeing the "ideal society" created by his nation, finally woke up to see the hellish nature of this ideology. In his speech Solzhenitsin most likely spoke about his deep feelings from having once more become human again after returning to God and learning the true value of freedom for the first time in his life. A person who lives a life where realization comes only through bitter experience have a sad destiny.

Presently in Japan, with the exception of the older party officials, and the groups and the organizations associated with leftist political parties, people have been brought up in a completely free society and they tend to mistake licentiousness for freedom. They mistakenly believe that the religions which preside over ceremonies like marriages and funerals represent God, and also the mass media like these religions are afraid to obey the teachings or to affirm the existence of God. People who work in the mass media thus sell their loyalty to evil spirits which control the left wing groups in order to secure their own livelihood. Those clergy in various religions sects are just the same in this respect, and they give themselves over to evil spirits just for the sake of keeping their organization going, and this moves them even further away from God. They never even attempt to bring about changes within their organization of their own accord, and they continue to perpetuate falsehoods and lies. Also, many religious people have become puppets for the leftists who are the harbingers of hell.

The foolish citizens are blinded by the rhetoric of the leftists who mix in with the mass media and religious groups, and fail to realize that they are treading down the road to destruction, and further, they remain unaware of the existence of the true God. These people are not like lost sheep who once knew God. Instead they are people who regard Satan as their father, who walk down the path to hell of their own free will bound by the chains of death. They refuse to even lend us an ear, so that there is no way to save these lost sheep who choose to follow Satan and his servants. This is because they never even stop to listen to the lute of the shepherd, and continue to joyfully follow the lead of evil spirits to mix with wolves and serve them as their masters.
