

Archangel Sariel

To reiterate clearly the matters being presented in this second volume, it has come to the point where each and every individual of the human race must shoulder the inescapable fate as one living in the present decadent world of being judged before God for the weight of his sins and his spiritual illness.

The celestial world strove to the final moment to avoid this situation at all cost.

But in the face of the deep attachment of Satan toward the building of his own kingdom, numerous difficulties arose, and his repeated and tenacious attacks brought about such violent battles as could never be understood by you people of the third dimension.

The celestial world instructed mankind through Shinji Takahashi that words of compassion and love must be pronounced to save their wandering souls. But many people made the mistake of believing that this is the single absolute method for achieving salvation.

Satan of Veh-erde completed a life on the planet as a physicist. Thus he gained a wealth of scientific knowledge with which he gained for himself the same level of psychic powers as is held by those of the ninth dimension. His wife was also a person of the same high level of intelligence. With these powers they succeeded in committing all manner of crimes in the spiritual world. Thus they made the third dimension suffer, and for this they were vanished from Veh-erde.

They came to the earth and repeated the same crimes. The one who was known as the second generation Satan was the wife, and, of course, the first generation Satan was the husband of this pair.

Through mercy and love of the celestial world, both of individuals reformed, and during the time Lucifer, the third generation Satan, was on the earth, they were in heaven.

Then at the same time that Lucifer reformed, they both became Satan once again and together ravaged both the earth and heaven.

The celestial world fell into terrible confusion. This confusion resulted in the development of death battles in which all manner of scientific methods were utilized to absolutely destroy many of the spirits in the celestial world.

It was far more than a matter of mere wounds. It was either destroy or be destroyed. This is the reason it has been called a death battle. The scientific methods utilized were not made public, as it was feared that possession of such knowledge could result in the birth of another Satan.

Thus the gods and the devils came from Veh-erde to visit the earth. And the gods created man in their own image (since this was done in terms of both spirit and soul, the implications are deep indeed), and the devils nurtured souls and spirits of evil.

This is not a myth or anything of that kind, but I say it as a pronouncement of truth. The basic characteristics inherent in a human being of sublimity and bestiality come from God and the devil respectively.

After passing through some crisis, a person of great beauty and purity of heart may suddenly become depraved, or become criminal, and fall into adverse fortune. This is brought about by the interference of evil spirits from the fourth dimension.

It is indeed shocking but true that from very shortly after birth only fifty percent of a person's awareness is formulated through the protection and guidance of good spirits and that person's own individual consciousness and enlightenment.

The personality of the spirit with which the persons is unified makes up one half, and the other half is made up of the personality inherited from his physical parents (inherent aspects) and the personality formed by environment and education (acquired aspects). It is in this manner that a person's personality is formulated during his lifetime. During that time the temptations of evil spirits and Satan may come. It is through such temptations that one's innate wisdom and defense instinct come into action to help one gain knowledge from the experience. The accumulation of such knowledge and experience forms the history of the good self and serves as training for the soul.

In the past the celestial world provided all persons, except a special few, with only two spirits to aid in the defense against the persistent evil spirits. These were the spirit with which a person is unified and a guardian spirit. But in this final age of decadence three good spirits have become necessary for the protection of each individual person. They are the spirits with which the person is unified, his guardian spirit, and a guiding spirit.

Since February 13, the number of spirits in the celestial world has decreased again to only half of the remainder till then. While there are deaths every day and the good spirits who are thus released are enlisted as replacements, there are still so many vacancies that it has become necessary to limit the number of spirits to two per person again—the spirit with which the person is unified and the guardian spirit.

But the new spirits in the celestial world increase day by day. Now that Satan has finally been eliminated, they are able to begin their training in an atmosphere of happiness and light.

This is also due to the fact that the last judgement and all executions have been completed in heaven.

Half of the people of the third dimension have also been judged, and executions would have been carried out in various forms.

The half that have not yet been judged are made up of only a few that must be judged, the majority of them being persons who required no judgement at all.

Half of them are persons who truly deserve to be welcomed into heaven. They are made up of those who have completed their atonement and those who deserve to be welcomed into heaven with joy.

The other six archangels have written about judgement for sins and the strictness of the last judgement, but I would like to tell you all about the people who are saved from despair and about hope and the future.

Aside from the damage done by erroneous treatment and diagnosis, medical science and pharmacology are for the purpose of curing the ills of the human race and saving lives—an honorable mission that is the work of God.

Of course, I am not saying that all the people who serve in the field of social welfare are perfect nor that they have superior technique.

Among the younger generation of doctors, there are those who have been flattered by the trends of society into believing that character has nothing to do with their work and that medicine is no more than a technique. From the viewpoint of the ethics of the medical profession, these people are indeed depraved.

But half of the total number of doctors, nurses, and those involved in social welfare work carry out their duties with a sense of service to humanity and perseverance in the face of difficulty.

These people have particularly strong convictions and they lead an idealistic life. They dedicate their own lives to work for the saving of others. Compared to these people, the efforts of religionists fall far short of the mark.

In recent years, however, criticism and indictments against the errors of doctors, against failure of hospital facilities, and against the income of doctors have shown a tendency to escalate. This cursing of those who work to save human life is a strange phenomenon.

This came about at the same time that people were enticed into turning their backs on God and to refuse to cooperate with good spirits by Satan.

Now that Satan is dead, this way of thinking must be rectified.

Of course, my explanation is not necessary for this to be understood. All you need do is to take a glance back at the dark period in history when there were no doctors at all.

I wish to report again that heaven gives grace and light to those doctors, nurses, and social welfare workers who take the worries and pains of others as their own, who make all many of sacrifices in their own private lives for the sole purpose of continuing their efforts to save and heal others.

They are blessed in their work because it is the work of good spirits and serves as an aid to God.

Needless to say, both doctors and the general public must understand that medical science and methods of treatment are for the purpose of maintaining health and giving a chance for superior persons to serve society for a longer period of time. For this reason, doctors carry a great responsibility toward the human lives that are put into their hands. Thus they must quickly improve or abandon any type of treatment in either Occidental or Oriental medicine that is harmful to health in order to concentrate on the promotion of the natural blessings of the health of the human body.

From the standpoint of the individual doctor, no matter whether a democratic majority of the entire medical profession had made the decision, or a dictatorial individual has set up his own conservative opinion or prejudice or faction to promote some form of treatment, we encourage the individual doctor to avoid being swayed by disreputable practices and to reconsider and reinvestigate any type of treatment that seems questionable. If he finds that something that is approved of by a minority is good, he should use it. In any case, no perfectly ideal treatment method has been discovered to date. We desire that each and every doctor work to eliminate the difficulties and defects of the present situation in the medical world, and to strive to discover the true cause of disease and to improve treatment methodology as a worker in this particular field of science.

In future, it may be that human race of the earth will be able to develop truly prudent character and spirit, and become members of heaven where they will take over after we are gone. For this purpose as well, we hope that there will appear from among the doctors of the world persons who search after the highest knowledge, who strive for purification of character, and who become individuals of high virtue who are not swayed by the flattery of any form of evil that may confront them.

Our desire in this field is particularly strong because of the fact that all we seven archangels including El Lantie carried out research and fulfilled our duties and responsibilities as doctors in the past both during our lives in Veh-erde and through our various reincarnations on the earth throughout the entire length of past history.
